

Joel CACHERA

Joël has extensive experience with the French Red Cross in the disaster management sector. Moreover, he is a hydrogeologist engineer and served for years with research and expertise organizations on water and sanitation in developing countries.

He served for 4 years as emergency preparedness and response officer and WASH technical advisor at the FRC Regional Intervention Platform for the Indian Ocean (PIROI) which plays a key role in the regional Red Cross Disaster Management system in the Indian Ocean alongside IFRC and NS.

Joël also served as emergency operation officer at the International Department of FRC HQ.

He has been working PIRAC for a year as a Disaster Manager and Wash Technical Advisor.

Then, Joël is used to supporting small state island national societies, in preparedness building capacities and emergency response operations with CMR.

Joël is ERU WASH trained, RDRT (Regional Disaster Response Team) Health in Emergency trained and UNDAC trained (UN Disaster Assessment and Coordination).