

MICHAEL MARX

Michael Marx is currently the Chief of Policy, Plans, and Training for the United Nations' Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs' (UN/OCHA) Civil-Military Coordination Service. Prior to this position, he served as OCHA's Senior Civil-Military Coordination Advisor in New York and as the Chief of the Civil-Military Coordination Section (CMCS) in UN/OCHA in Geneva. He has also served as Head of Office in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, as well as other humanitarian assignments.

Michael joined the UN after more than two decades working within the US Government, including serving as the Division Director for the Disaster Response and Mitigation Division in the Office of US Foreign Disaster Assistance at the US Agency for International Development (USAID/OFDA). While in OFDA he served in various disaster response assignments, including DART Team Leader (Disaster Assistance and Response Team) in operations that included Iraq, Afghanistan, Ethiopia, Angola, and Mozambique. Michael is also a former US Army Officer, serving primarily overseas included postings in the Middle East, Asia, Europe, and Africa. While in the Army, he participated in multiple operations supporting humanitarian assistance and disaster relief, as well one tour with the United Nations Peacekeeping Mission in Mozambique.